

Triangle editor's report, 2016

I am pleased to announce that The Triangle continues to be very successful. We now print 370 Triangles and Pinks every issue so the number is growing slowly but steadily. We have quite a few new houses being built in Slingsby at the moment so hopefully our circulation will increase once these are occupied.

You will be pleased to hear that, despite producing the biggest ever Triangle, at 24 pages, we are able to keep the subscription price at £5 per year for 2017. That subscription also includes six Pink Pages and one Yellow Pages every year, so it has to be good value!

As you will have read in the last issue, unfortunately my co-editor, Naomi, has decided that the February/March issue of The Triangle will be her last, so we are again looking for a new co-editor. We are all grateful to Naomi for helping us out over the last 18 months and will be sorry to lose her. However, if any of our current subscribers feel able to fill Naomi's shoes, please do let one of the Triangle team know at thetriangle@slingsbyvillage.co.uk. As co-editor, with me, you would be responsible for compiling three alternate editions a year. You must be computer literate (the magazine is currently compiled using MSWord) be familiar with e-mail, be able to download text and image files and tweak them accordingly.

I would also like to take this opportunity to remind readers that we can only continue to publish the magazine in its present 20 or even 24 page form if we have sufficient material to fill it. So if anyone is considering contributing an article, please just say so. Don't be concerned about your inability to use a computer, write legibly or spell correctly as the editors can help you. We can even write the article after talking with you about the topic, if you prefer.

Please continue to support The Triangle. It seems to be well received in the area, so to lose it after all the hard work that has been done over the last five years would be a disaster. Please help us to keep The Triangle going and thriving!
